For godsake, people. They are not a DoJ/Homeland Security priority. They are not even a Department of Justice issue. Think about it: what is the legal system supposed to do about this? I mean, hello, we're way beyond questions of habeus corpus, here.

The Centers for Disease Control, damn it. They handle the zombie problem. If you're unhappy with that, please remember it next time a vote comes up to cut the CDC's funding.

Yeah, right. Mirandize these babies. They'll have your head split open and be lapping up your brains before you get to the second or third "You have the right--". As for warning shots--I think not. You have to be able to respond to a warning shot for there to be any point in that.

Anybody want to be this is another BigPharma project gone horribly wrong because adverse test results weren't submitted to the FDA?

See, that's what I'm talking about. And as far as clogging the courts? Puh-leeze. It's a public health issue, man. We can keep the peace and try to deal with the panic, but when it comes to anti-zombification measures, those just aren't in the job description!

ace_cub_reportr might disagree, but napalm has some value in situations like these.

Distinct lack of napalm up here, although I heard something that might have been a FAE canister a while back.

I'm finding that .30 carbine from a Plainfield is working quite admirably, however. I suppose I should be glad that I banged up my toe, and can't shoot that CMP match this weekend - I laid in some extra to shoot this week...

...y'know, thinking on it, I guess I am shooting it. All things told, though, I'd rather be punching holes in paper.

"You have the right to be decapitated. If you cannot afford to be decapitated, a .45 slug between the eyes will be administered to you."

Of course, if we still had the Civil Defense like G*D intended, there wouldn't be a problem.

(That "atomic test small town" video in the fifties? Zombies. Altmont? Zombies. CD were professionals, with a salvage & recovery plan for EVERYTHING.)

As long as they weren't under FEMA. *g*

I suspect there was a secret plan that knew a Nukyuler war was unsurvivable; but building a secret stash of "Carbohydrate supplements" for thousands of CD dependents & janitors was the real objective.

One of my personal issues is that the "Emergency Alert System" was silent (SILENT!) on 9/11. Excuse me?

WTF is it FOR? Sirens go off, tune in to your radio. Big d*mn overlay on your tv: "We know boop is happening; Do not panic: please stay tuned for further news & information."
Le Sigh. (Oops: Freedom Sigh)

Does that mean that if there's a smallpox outbreak, it's the CDC's entire bailiwick? 'Cause you know Homeland Suckerity will be blaming terrorists and nosing in to find the vector of insertion (cause they are so good at that).

It's a holistic thing, or would be if the various agencies actually worked together.

(oh wait, what was I thinking)

We could do that, but it would make everyone nervous. Including us.

Entropy is caused by teenagers! Everyone knows that. That's why we lock 'em up all day, and won't let 'em skateboard on the sidewalks!

"Skateboarding is not a crime." Unfortunately, many skateboarders commit property crimes in their pursuit of their G*D-given right to be stupid.

But, before you're suprised at the Z-Rate amongst teens, remember the most common victims in slasher movies. My heart warms at the memory of the Seniors Tourgroup that whupped a&& on Jamaican bandits last year.

Thus the state of teenage bedrooms...

Mine was commonly referred to as either 'The Pit' or 'entropy central'. It got a bit, um, /concentrated/ in there, because every time it tried to infiltrate the rest of the house, there was my mother with a chair and a whip, forcing it back. It sulked a lot.
